The background of the slide features a grayscale image of a group of people, likely refugees, walking in a line. They are carrying large backpacks and some are holding hands, suggesting a journey or migration. The title 'War and missing pieces' is overlaid in large, bold, red font at the top of the image.

War and missing pieces

In chapter 10 Ahmet got a gold star because his plant had grown faster than anyone else. He used pictures of sea shells, whales and fish to decorate his pot.

When the bully filled his rucksack with beans Ahmet was really sad and they asked him why is that rucksack so important to him.

He said that the rucksack is important to him because he was carrying it from the time he left his house until now and we learn about Ahmet's journey from Syria and it becomes clear why his rucksack is so important to him. He still use it even though it's dirty and smelly. Ahmet has carried his rucksack all the way from his home in Syria to his new life in England. It is a symbol of his journey.

Bombs were dropped near Ahmet's home town. His father was a teacher and his mother worked in a newspaper. His family decided to run away. They were trying to find safety. They walked over the mountains, crossed rivers and they made a trip by boat and they arrived in Greece.

They lived in a refugee camp.

They walked again to reach France and they finally came to England.
